

This was my set up and it works by recording both at the same time in python lol, granted I didn't have a base plate covering the diff so it looks pretty much the same but you guys get the point